Saving languages

Five hundred years ago, Europeans arrived at a new continent. They new cultures and languages to America. However, there were people living there who had their own cultures and languages. And so a terrible part of history began.

As more Europeans arrived, there was a fight for the land with the native American Indians. By the end of the nineteenth century, the Indian tribes were to reservations. By the end of the twentieth century more than half of the Native Americans in the US in cities. They gave up speaking their old tribal language and only used English. As a result, many Native American languages and with them their culture.

Some American Indian languages are used today but they are usually spoken by the older members of the tribes who still live on the reservations.

There is nothing more British than fish and chips. This is a very tasty dish if it's freshly cooked. You can eat it both at home and outdoors.

Here are some facts about how fish and chips came about. London claims to be the inventor of this famous meal. It happened in the 17th century. At that time chips were a cheap kind of food. The British had plenty of fish so they put fish and chips together. The combination was so tasty that people liked it immediately. This way the new national dish was born. It used to be sold at markets and then the first fish and chips shops appeared. Originally these were small family businesses. Now there are big chain stores of fish and chips. If you ever come to England, you simply must try this really tasty dish.
